SJRR Municipal Corporation High School, KOTHAPET, Guntur

Lourdu High School, Bongaralabeedu, Guntur

Sri Komala Hanumantharaya High School, Near B.R Stadium, Guntur

Smt. Kasu Sayamma Municipal Corporation High School, Kothapet, Guntur

Z.P High School, Nallapadu

SKB Municipal Corporation High School, A.T. Agraharam, Guntur

SGNK Municipal Corporation Girls High School, Railpet, Guntur

Indian Springs High School, Kothapet, Guntur

After completing their micro teaching practice and the practice teaching of three lessons in the college under the supervision of their lecturers, student teachers proceed to their respective schools for the internship. During the third semester, they are required to teach 17 lessons, followed by an additional 3 plus 17 lessons in the fourth semester. The mentors assist the students in planning their schedules and teaching strategies.

Classroom Teaching: Planning for teaching involves incorporating a variety of activities to engage students. Student teachers employ creative and innovative techniques, paired with a friendly approach, to make their lessons both interesting and lively. Each child in the class is given the opportunity to participate, enjoying the diverse methods introduced by the student teachers. In the second semester, the student teachers observe the regular teachers in the classroom, gaining insights into real-world teaching dynamics. In the third semester, as the student teachers lead their lessons, the school teachers closely observe and provide detailed feedback both orally and in written reports, highlighting strengths and pinpointing areas for improvement. Daily reflective journal sessions allow the student teachers to introspect and identify their strengths and weaknesses, helping them to rectify their mistakes.

Other Academic Activities: Interns coordinate with school teachers for invigilation during exams and assist in laboratory practicals. They conduct slip tests, check homework and assignments, and manage marks in registers or computers.

Proxy Periods: During periods when a teacher is absent or occupied with urgent work, student teachers engage the class in activities beyond regular teaching. These sessions include quizzes, elocutions, competitions like singing and crafting, and group discussions. Proxy periods offer a valuable opportunity for student teachers to interact freely with students, understanding their interests, learning styles, and levels of comprehension.

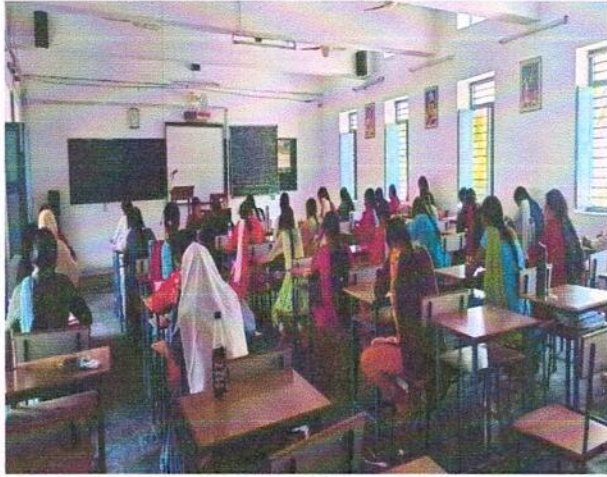

Co-curricular Activities: A variety of activities are planned and executed by the interns. They play with the students, counsel them, and encourage them, fostering a joyful learning environment. During events like PTA meetings, community service activities, school functions, or visits from guests, the interns assist with preparations, monitor student participation, and manage decorations. Through interactions with the students, they also educate them on life skills.

In conclusion, the internship experience proved to be invaluable in providing hands-on experiences and practical knowledge in class management, student counseling, organizing activities, and classroom teaching-learning.
