Mock interviews which are instrumental in fading away the inhibitions, fears, introvert feelings and phobia that usually cause the unwanted disturbances due to which most of the failures happen in live interviews. Exposure to such activity improves the levels of self-confidence in the students and enables them to face the challenges of being involved in actual job interviews. In this regard, we, emphasize conversational English on computer education courses to enable students to be familiar with the terminology needed for the job interviews. The placement in charge Dr. J R. Priyadarsini consulted college senior faculty to conduct mock interview for our students.

To give glimpses of his life, a power point presentation was given through which we learnt to a great deal. He thought of encouraging willing girls to join hands to bring the change in the society. The first three girls he started with were Maria Stichters, Sophie Miltner and Lubuina van Elck He got them trained, and they professed as catholic Nuns and later a new Congregation for Women was founded on 29th July 1822, in Amersfoort, and named it as the Society of Jesus Mary Joseph (JMJ). The JMJ Congregation is rendering a great deal of service both nationally and internationally in various fields of which Education, Health and Social service being the prominent ones.

3. Communicating with persons of different disabilities:

Communicating effectively with individuals who have different disabilities requires awareness, empathy, and adaptability. It is an Annual Practice of our institution that our students meet special children every year. As a part of their Practicum visiting St. Anne's Manovikas Kendra and Shirdi Sai Blind School is a regular feature. Our students deal with special children empathetically and share with them as per the need. They use sign Language and their gentle touch itself act as a medicine. Children feel very happy and enjoy with the trainees. The initiatives under taken are very much encouraging and enjoyable to special children. The trainees entertain the students with songs, dances, games, supplying food, snacks, interaction etc.....

Impact:

Visits to such schools for students with disabilities offer teacher trainees a unique opportunity to understand and appreciate the intricacies of special education. By observing best practices and interacting with students and educators, trainees develop the skills and empathy needed to foster inclusive learning environments. These visits play a crucial role in preparing future educators to meet the diverse needs of all students.

4. Capability to develop a seminar and a research paper; to understand/appreciate the difference between the two:

Seminar

A seminar is a structured event where individuals gather to discuss specific topics, exchange ideas, and gain knowledge from an expert or a group of experts. Conducting a successful seminar requires careful planning, clear communication, and an engaging delivery. To conduct a seminar, we allot the topic to the students in the internal unit of the syllabus. We orient the students into it and also, we invite the external experts to present a guest lecture and guidelines based on which the students are encouraged to prepare a seminar. Then we display the seminar brochure of ours and other colleges and institutions on the notice board and encourage the students to go through the seminar topics from the displayed brochure and prepare their own seminar papers as a initial practice which are corrected by the faculty. Later they are encouraged to present the same to other colleges. Preparation of the seminar paper is purely theory based.

Research paper

Writing a research paper is a critical academic task that involves investigating a particular topic, analyzing information, and presenting findings in a structured and coherent manner. Whatever the role whether a student, scholar, or professional, mastering the art of research paper writing is essential.

In preparation of a research paper, theory classes are conducted for the students by the faculty. Under the guidance of the research guide, a research proposal is prepared by the M. ED students. In this process, a sequential approach is followed as per the guidelines of the respective guides. It starts with the selection of the problem, preparation of the objectives followed by the hypothesis, variables, analysis and interpretation. Apart from the classroom activity of guidelines, a practical approach is followed as they go to the field and collect the data related to the research topic.

Once the students are done with their dissertation, they're asked to publish the essence of their research papers. Later they are assigned as teaching assistants to faculty engaged in research and development. The M.ED students act almost as a trained assistant to faculty in organizing webinars, seminars and workshops. By then they are competent and capable of downloading the relevant literature, administrative tests, and analyze the data accumulating experience in research related tasks. This whole activity is research oriented preparation.

Seminars and research papers are both essential academic and professional tools, but they serve different purposes and are distinct in their format, delivery, and objectives.

5. E- Content development:

The integration of e-content in the class has become a cornerstone of modern pedagogical strategies, transforming how educational materials are created, delivered, and consumed. E-content—digital resources used for teaching and learning purposes—includes variety of formats such as e-textbooks, interactive modules, videos, and online assessments. This digital shift offers unprecedented opportunities for enhancing educational experiences, improving accessibility, and supporting diverse learning style. Subject-wise training in developing E-content modules is provided to students by methodology faculty. The E-Content materials focus on varied perspectives: cognitive, emotional, behavioral and contextual. Students develop a high sense of creativity in structuring and sequencing topics to enhanced learning experiences, flexibility, and personalized instruction.
